Background:

During the last decades, an increasing awareness of the need for a defined area of medicine to take care of patients with advanced life-threatening disease has emerged in all the Nordic countries. Official reports have been published, giving recommendations for the establishment of specialist palliative care services nation-wide, and an increasing number of palliative health care programs are being set up. So far, however, palliative medicine is not recognized as a medical specialty in any Nordic country, and up to now a very limited number of doctors in the Nordic countries have education and experience in the field. We are facing the situation that new palliative care units and programs might be established without the appropriate medical staffing. This situation presents an urgent need to educate doctors in the Nordic countries in palliative medicine at a specialist level.

A joint venture between the Associations for Palliative Medicine in the Nordic countries has resulted in this theoretical specialist training course in 6 modules over 2 years. The first course started in 2003, the fourth course ends May 2011. The 5th course will start september 2011. Each module lasts 5 days from Monday to Friday.

Throughout the modules all major topics in palliative medicine will be covered. A limited research project is included in the course. This may be quantitative or qualitative, in the form of a survey, an audit, development of clinical guidelines, or conducting a systematic review. The students should work on their own projects throughout the course period. The projects will be presented in Module 6. Students already having an ongoing project may use this, provided it is their own work.

A written assignment must be handed in, at the latest, 4 weeks after each module. The assignments will be marked Pass/Not pass. The students and the Steering Committee are consecutively evaluating each module and the course as a whole. Overall, the students have given the course very high ratings.

Language throughout the course will be English to suit applicants from all the Nordic countries.

Entry requirements and selection of participants:

The course is planned for 36 students.

Applicants should have completed specialist training in a recognized medical specialty and possess knowledge and skills corresponding to level B of the palliative medicine curriculum (1,2,3). The national associations will consider and nominate students among the applicants from their respective countries. The Steering Committee makes the final selection..

Price:

The fee for each of the six course modules will be Euro 670 (total course fee: Euro 4020). Travel and accommodation costs must be added.

The six modules are placed as follows: Two in Norway, two in Sweden, one in Finland and one in Denmark.

Every student is responsible for paying his/her own expenses.

Application form and detailed course program are available from your national Association for Palliative Medicine.
